

NATASHA CHICK, Divisional Director Tribunals, Trade Marks and Designs, IPO, UK

Natasha Chick is the divisional director responsible for tribunals, trade marks and designs at the Intellectual Property Office. She started off her career as a patent examiner before working in IP policy, most recently on Brexit. In addition to the IPO, Natasha has worked for the Danish Government as a UK secondee working on single marked issues and for the Foreign and Commonwealth Office working on European Economic Policy.